Mild weather and sonshine made the Speciators filled the sidewalks, and the great course was alive with fast trutters and pacers and natty wagons. Both horsemen and speciators divided their patronage between the lower and upper stretches. Those who arrived early went to the upper stretch, where a few good brushes were seen, but the drivers soon discovered that the footing was hetter on the lower stretch and went there, the sidewalk crowd following.

One of the closest and most exciting brushes of the day occurred on the lower stretch after most of the crowd had left the drive between James Murphy's pacer Amy Wilkes and E. E.
